

3 EXPECTANT MOTHERS HELD BY INEBRIANT

Columbus, Ga., May 7 (P)—A tall, dark man with a hangover was sought today as the abductor of three young expectant mothers, wives of Fort Benning soldiers.

The three wives returned from Florida by bus Thursday and reported to the Army's Criminal Investigation Department that a drunken man held them captive in his automobile for 12 hours at pistol point.

They had been missing for nearly 17 hours—since they stepped out of the pre-natal clinic at the Fort Benning hospital. An alarm had been spread and army authorities started a wide-spread search announcing they feared foul play.

Enticed Into Coupe

Upon their return, worn and distraught, they related that a dark-complected man more than six feet tall enticed them into a dark coupe with a promise to drive them home.

He stopped near midnight at a filling station near the Georgia-Florida state line.

There, the account continued, he became embroiled in an argument with the station keeper over the price of gasoline. The three young women ran first to a rest room, then slipped out and started down the road in the darkness.

A couple picked them up in an auto and drove them to Milton, Fla. Too anxious to get back home to think about telephoning that they were safe they caught the next bus to Columbus.

One of the young wives is expecting her baby next week. She is Mrs. Mary Ellen Peters, 18, of Toronto, Ohio.

The other two are Mrs. Joyce McMullen, 21, of Scottsville, Ky., and Mrs. Tosca Fazio, 22, an Italian war bride.

Tony Langan, former city golf champion of Syracuse is the captain of the Syracuse University golf team this spring.

T. J. Winebrenner, Harry Koch and Attorney Meals were appointed as a committee to mark suitably the over 100 pictures of GAR members, camping scenes and the like in the post rooms. It was pointed out that in future years the pictures will be an invaluable part of the county's historical record and that suitable markings telling who the men are and giving some details of their activities will become more valuable with each passing year.

The Rev. Willis R. Dovie and G. Henry Roth were appointed as a refreshment committee for the May 20 meeting of the post.

Sees Chance For New Labor Bill Passage

Washington, May 7 (P)—Rep. Sims (D-S.C.) said today there's an excellent chance that within a month the House will pass a new version of the compromise Democratic labor bill it defeated this week.

Sims who introduced the original compromise said the new bill may provide for both plant seizure and injunctions in "national emergency" disputes. The defeated Sims bill provided for injunctions only.

A Senate labor bill offered Wednesday by Senators Taft (R-Ohio), Donnell (R-Mo.) and Smith (R-N.J.) contains a "seizure-or-injunction-or-both" provision. This procedure is less objectionable to labor unions than straight injunction power.

Backers of the Senate GOP measure are trying to get active Democratic support for it—a Democratic co-sponsor, if possible.

Emmitsburg

Emmitsburg—The regular monthly meeting of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin of St. Joseph's church was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Reynolds. Sixteen members and the Spiritual Director, Rev. Francis Stauble were present. Father Stauble gave the opening prayer.

Mrs. Guy Topper, consultant of Band No. 5, reported $10 cleared at her evening of games held April 21. The party held Saturday evening April 30, in the firemen's hall by the entire Sodality netted $90.73.

The next evening of games will be sponsored by Band No. 6. Mrs. Thornton Rodgers, consultant the date for which will be May 26 instead of the regular evening of May 19.

A discussion was held regarding Blue Cross hospitalization insurance.

of saving and as a matter of patriotism, to help their country. Your job is to show the need of continued bond buying today. Adams countains as of January 1 owned over $7,989,000 worth of bonds. Those were the bonds owned by individuals, not by partnerships, corporations or organizations. That amount not only shows that individuals have a basic backlog of savings but more particularly shows that countians are agreed that the government bonds are a good investment.

Edmund W. Thomas, president of the First National bank and chairman of the county's government savings bond committee, named Carl W. # DERBY WINNER IS CONTENDER IN PREAKNESS

Louisville, Ky., May 9 (AP)—Olympia will not start in the preakness at Baltimore Saturday.

His trainer, Ivan Parke, said the favorite that finished sixth in last Saturday's Kentucky derby will be flown to New York instead. "We just decided to pass it (the preakness) up," he said.

While Olympia was readied for travel to New York, crafty old Ben Jones, the Missouriian who trained Ponder, the surprise derby winner, got ready to take his latest prize and joy to Baltimore for a crack at the $75,000 added preakness.

Beat the Favorite

The preakness, the second "jewel" in American racing's triple crown is set for Pimlico Saturday, where Ponder is going to have enough equine company to keep things quite interesting as the pace changes from Kentucky bourbon to Maryland rice.

The Calumet farm colt trimmed 13 rivals in the Diamond Jubilee derby, including the heavily favored Olympia. Now the big question is whether the young upstart which never did anything until May 7, 1949, can do it again over the slightly shorter preakness course.

Four or five other derby horses are heading Pimlicoward, where several others are waiting for Maryland's biggest race.

Watching Capot

Around the barns at Churchill Downs there is a general opinion that Capot will be a large number in the preakness.

Capot, Greentree Stable's ace, was the one which went out with the fast-stepping Olympia in the blistering early derby pace. There isn't much doubt that Capot cooked Olympia's goose, for he went out and ran with him from the start like nothing has done before this year.

Of course, it also chilled off Capot and gave the horse with the most left at the finish—Warren Wright's Ponder—the diamond studded gold cup.

Will Admit Three To Hall Of Fame

New York, May 9 (AP)—Two great pitchers of the past and a modern-day second baseman will be honored as new members of baseball's Hall of Fame in July.

Mordecai Peter (three finger) Brown and Charles A. (Kid) Nichols have been selected by the Permanent Hall of Fame committee, Charles L. Gehring has been picked by the Baseball Writers association.

The Permanent committee makes its selections from players who retired more than 25 years ago. The Writers consider only players active during the last 25 years but who have been retired at least one full season.

Fifty-five other players have been named to the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y. Ceremonies are held there annually in July.

Interstate League

(By The Associated Press)
The York White Roses took both ends of a Sunday twin bill from the seventh place Allentown Cardinals to come within a half game of climbing out of the Interstate league cellar.

The Roses blasted out 14 base hits to win the opener 6-3 and coasted to a 5-2 decision in the seven-inning nightcap behind the four-hit hurling of George Yerbetsky. All the other clubs divided in their Sunday double bills.

The pace-setting Wilmington Blue Rocks nosed out the Harrisburg Senators 5-4 and then dropped the nightcap 4-0; the second place Trenton Giants swamped Sunbury 10-1 and lost the afterpiece 14-11, and Hagerstown turned back Lancaster 7-5 after losing 9-8. The split enabled the Lancaster Red Roses to take the Hagerstown series 3-1 and left them in third place.

The Harrisburg 4-0 win in the second game against Wilmington was a four-hit mound performance by Lefty Pierce. Only one Wilmington player reached second base.

Sunbury's split with Trenton proved costly. Catcher Lou Hummel fractured his left arm in a collision with Trenton shortstop Don Wentzel in the eighth inning of the first game. He will be out for the rest of the season.

Sportsmen Hold Special Meeting

A special meeting of the Adams County Fish and Game association was held last Friday evening at Cashtown.

It was decided to purchase an incubator to hatch quail eggs. It was also decided to advise members of meetings by sending individual cards. Announcement was made that the new arm patches and yearly badges are now available.

The next meeting will be held at Cashtown on Thursday evening, May 19.

Horseshoe Pitchers Defeat Hunterstown

The Gettysburg Horseshoe team defeated Hunterstown 15-8 Sunday evening on the local courts located at Kerrigan's shop, East Middle street. Approximately 75 persons witnessed the games.

Lights will be installed on the court on Tuesday. Anyone interested in joining the local organization is asked to contact Dick Thompson at Thompson's restaurant.

RESCUE COUPLE
SIX DAYS AFTER PLANE CRASHES

By GEORGE BRIMMELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Vancouver, B. C., May 9 (Distributed by Associated Press)—Sunburned and grimy, weary of chocolate bars and mosquitoes, Bill Grant and Sheila Cure came home last night—six days overdue.

Dressed in the same light clothing
they wore when their light fleet Canuck aircraft crashed last Monday in a driving snowstorm atop 3,080-foot Mount Hozomeen, 135
miles east, they told this story:

Grant, 30, a Vancouver pilot, and the 28-year-old student nurse left Cardston, Alta., en route to Vancouver at 8 a. m. Monday.

"The weather," said Grant, "was fine."

"We hit the first bad weather when we tried to go through the Coughhalla Pass. It was coming down like curtains."

"They tried the Big Bend highway route but had to turn back. They tried to get to Princeton, B. C., "but we were blocked in solid."

"We were about at the border when it really closed in," Grant said.
"Then she started to ice up. The wings and struts were iced and the prop was, too."

"I knew that was it. I started to ease down slowly and the next thing
I saw was snow and trees."

"I shouted to Sheila: 'Watch it.
Here we go!'"

Grant said one wing hit a snag going in and the propeller snapped off. The only injury suffered was a bruised finger for Grant.

The pair spent that night—under freezing conditions—in the hole that the nose of the plane had dug when it crashed. "It was awfully cold,"
said Miss Cure. "Bitter."

The next morning "we gathered what stuff we could and started down the mountain."

Their first hazard appeared to be an ice field. As they began to cross it the field moved.

The pair was carried 500 feet.
"Sheila's head and one foot was sticking out the top when it stopped," Grant laughed. Neither was hurt.

Food Is Rationed

"We realized we'd have to ration our food," Miss Cure said. "So we had only one square of chocolate apiece each day. Of course we had lots of water. The river ran all along the bottom of the gorge."

By Thursday they were "feeling pretty low."

About noon, they saw two RCAF aircraft.

"That was the first indication we had they were looking for us," Grant said. "It really bucked us up. We tried to signal them—we built a fire
—but they were too far away."

Friday they saw more planes and that afternoon two RCAF Dakotas dropped the three para-rescue men who later guided them to safety. "A helicopter dropped us a radio and 'K' rations. That was the first real food we'd had since Monday," Grant said.

Saturday morning they met the para-rescue men. "Were we glad to see them!"

groove, rarely moving up or down more than small fractions.

campaign chairman, expressed the hope that the campaign can be completed within the very near future.

Only a few professional people have sent in contributions so far,
and only a few of the coin containers placed in the county have been collected. It was expected that all of the Gettysburg coin containers would be turned in today or Tuesday. The containers placed in Biglerville and Arendtsville have already been brought in.

So far approximately $1,800 has been donated by persons who sent checks or money to Mrs. Codori or to the other local chairmen throughout the county. In addition approximately $260 was cleared at the Gettysburg Lions club minstrel held at the South Mountain Fair Grounds' memorial auditorium for the benefit of the cancer fund.

Prepare Clinic Fund

The committee expressed the hope that the county would go "over the top" in its current campaign because about half the amount collected will be available for use locally in connection with the establishment of a cancer clinic at the Warner hospital. The clinic is to be set up within the next few weeks.

The other half of the money raised locally goes to the American Cancer society for use in research designed to find cure of cancer and in public relations work to inform the public of cancer signs and promote early treatment of the disease.

Checks to the fund can be sent to Mrs. Codori at her home, 44 York street, Gettysburg, and should be made out to "Mrs. Joseph E. Codori, Adams County Cancer Unit."

MOTHER'S DAY
IS OBSERVED
BY CHURCHES

The front of the sanctuary of the Centenary Methodist church was decorated as a flower garden with a picket fence for the special Mother's Day Flower Festival held there on Sunday morning. Included in the decorations were roses, tulips, snowballs, spirea, iris and mock-orange as well as potted geraniums, verbenas and fern. These decorations were arranged by the Junior Fellowship assisted by the Rev. and Mrs. Grantas E. Hoopert. The church was filled for this service.

Memorial flowers were also placed on the chancel in memory of Mrs.
Estella Burgoon by the children.

Each mother present was given a potted verberna. Corsages of lilies of the valley and violets were presented to all other ladies present who were not mothers. A surprise feature on the program was the presentation of a pink carnation corsage to Mrs. Hoopert and a white carnation to the Rev. Mr. Hoopert by the Junior Fellowship.

Mrs. Winfield Lippy of town, was guest organizer for the service.

"Open the Gates of the Temple" and Rose of Sharon," which was pantomimed as she sang by Kenneth Knight. The Junior Fellowship choir sang "I Come to the Garden" and

"The Lord Is My Shepherd." Their processional hymn was "For the Beauty of the Earth."

Written By Pastor
"The Message of the Flowers" was the theme of this unusual service which was written and directed by the Rev. Mr. Hoopert. There was a scene of scriptural sentences from the garden in which the participants were Lois Shull, Sandra Shad-le, Joan Blevins, Robert Blevins and a scene of recitations by Jane Bar-

BEVIN SAYS
WORLD PEACE
AIM OF BIG 4

Berlin, May 9 (P)—British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said today that at the forthcoming Paris Big Four conference "we hope to plan
the peace of the world."

He made the comment at brief ceremonies at the American airlift terminal, Tempelhof, where Gen.
Lucius D. Clay saw him off for the British zone of Germany.

There the British Foreign Secretary will talk with German leaders who yesterday finished drawing up a constitution for the three western zones. He will also talk with British experts on Germany preliminary to the May 23rd conference with the foreign ministers of the United States, France and the Soviet Union.

Freedom and Democracy Bevin said yesterday Britain would strive for German freedom and democracy at the conference.

He told the city Parliament of Western Berlin he "would not agree to anything on behalf of Great Britain which will take away the freedom of the German people x x x of spoil their chances of establishing an unfettered democracy."

He also told them there was a "lot to do" before British troops would be withdrawn from Germany.

Later Bevin told a news conference
the meeting of foreign ministers would lay the groundwork for a German peace treaty in the future.

"It must finally influence the total result at the end," he said.

Discussing the ministers' work Bevin stated, "we must think 10 or 15 years ahead. We must decide whether decisions will mean peace in the long run. And sometimes popular decisions may be wrong."

WEST GERMAN CONSTITUTION GETS APPROVAL

By JAMES DEVLIN
Bonn, Germany, May 9 (AP)—The Germans at last have the constitution for a new West German republic—democratic, unarmed and pledged to peace.
 Today it is being rushed to Western zone military governors for final approval. The 11 West German states' legislatures must ratify it yet, too.
 Despite opposition from States Righters, some Centrists and the Communists, the German constitutional convention approved it, 53 to 12, last night.

Took Four Years
 German democracy was reborn—on paper, at least—four years to the day after Nazi Germany hopelessly conceded defeat.

The constitution leaves the door open for the Russian zone to join the new state—if free elections take place in Soviet-controlled East Germany.

The four-power Council of Foreign Ministers will discuss the German question generally in Paris May 23. Free elections might be planned there.

However, at present Communists say they are proceeding with an "all-German government" in the Russian zone. They have insisted on a united Germany and opposed a Western state.

Reservations Missing
 The constitutional convention took eight months to draft the 146-article constitution.

Not mentioned in the final document were the reservations which the U. S., British and French made at Washington April 8th when they agreed to the proposed republic. These are believed to include control over basic relations between Germany and the outside world as well as security against a revival of German militarism.

Each of the three Western powers would terminate military government and appoint a high commissioner. The three high commissioners would be the top authority in Germany.

Its Provisions
 The fundamental law of West Germany, as set up by the new constitution, marks an historic changeover to democracy, however, it:

1. Calls for a democratic, federal republic to govern the Western zones' 46,000,000 inhabitants until a government can be formed for all Germany.
2. Paves the way for general Parliamentary elections in the three Western zones. It is hoped the new government can take office July 15.
3. Makes the plotting of aggressive war a punishable offense. There is no provision for an army. No one neither the President nor Parliament—has power to declare war.
4. A bill of rights guarantees racial, lingual and religious equality. Freedom of press, religion and assembly is pledged. Censorship is forbidden.
5. The death penalty is forbidden—in the land where the headman's axe, the hangman's noose and concentration camp guards' bludgeons took uncounted lives during the Nazi era.

DUFF WON TWICE ON EQUAL RIGHTS

Harrisburg, May 9 (AP)—Gov. James H. Duff today was credited with two legislative victories on the anti-discrimination front.

Target of Democratic criticism for the failure of the GOP-dominated legislature to enact a state FEPC law, Duff won out, however, on his recommendations for "equal opportunity" provisions in the state Housing program and a proposed new military code.

The key measure of the Housing program earmarking $15,000,000 for outright housing grants or slum clearance provides that "there shall be no discrimination against any person because of race, color, religion or national origin in the rental or occupancy of any housing" constructed under the plan.

And the new military code, now awaiting Duff's signature, contains this provision, also new in Pennsylvania: "It is hereby declared to be the policy of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania that there shall be equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the Pennsylvania National Guard, the Penn-

Littlestown

Littlestown — A special Mothers' Day worship service of the entire school was held Sunday morning in Christ Reformed church during the Sunday school hour, when the various departments met in the sanctuary, with Mervin L. Myers, in charge. The call to worship and responsive prayer for Mothers' Day was in charge of Mr. Myers. Scripture was read by Mrs. Paul Berwager and Mrs. Harry E. Bair. Offered prayer. A male chorus under the direction of Paul Berwager sang, "Tell Mother I'll Be There." A poem, "Mothers' Day," was read by Myrtle Louise Yohe. The Mothers' Day message of Dr. H. H. A. Hanson which appeared in Saturday's issue of "The Times" was read by Harold O. Sentz. Following a song, the classes went to their respective departments where the lesson was taught by the regular teachers.

James C. Sentz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin M. Sentz, Sr., Cemetery street, who will receive his bachelor of science degree at Pennsylvania State college on June 6, majoring in agronomy, has accepted an assistantship in experimental statistics at the University of North Carolina, Raleigh, N. C. This is graduate work preparatory to the master of science degree and applies to agricultural research. Mr. Sentz will start this work early in July.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin M. Sentz, Sr., Cemetery street, and Mr. Sentz's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Wherley, East King street, spent the week-end visiting the former's son, James C. Sentz, a senior at Pennsylvania State college. On Saturday, they attended a dairy show at the college as well as the annual May Day festival. On Sunday morning, they attended services in the college chapel where there was an audience of approximately 1,500 with a choir of 100, at which service, the Rev. Dr. Howard C. Scharfe, pastor of the Shady Side Presbyterian church, Pittsburg, was the guest minister. Sunday afternoon, they were dinner guests at the Delta Theta Sigma Fraternity house, at which dinner the parents of a number of the students were guests, in observance of Mothers' Day.

The Rev. and Mrs. John C. Brumbach and daughter, Audrey Ellen, and Mary L. Ritter, East King street, attended the wedding of the former's niece, Mary Alice Brumbach and Russell R. McCallicher, Saturday afternoon in St. Stephens Reformed church, Reading. Miss Brumbach is a member of the church.

sylvania Guard, the Naval Militia, the Pennsylvania Naval Militia and the unorganized militia without regard to race, creed, color or national origin."

"There is also a provision, however, that in putting the anti-discrimination policy in effect, that federal authority over the state's military forces be taken into account. And also that such a policy shall be put in effect with due regard "to the time required to effect the changes without impairing the efficiency or morale of the militia."

The semi-monthly meeting of the Mason and Dixon Memorial Post No. 6954, VFW, will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the post home, West King street.

Richard Berwager was in charge of the meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of Christ Reformed church on Sunday evening. He led the discussion on the topic, "Christian Homes in a Pagan World," and was assisted by Glenn Unger, Ralph Unger, Sr. and the Rev. John C. Brumbach. A poem, "Lovely Lady" was read by Shirley Warner. Janet Gerrick read the scripture lesson and prayer was offered by the leader. A solo, "Mother," was sung by Gloria Warner accompanied by Fred Warner. Mr. Berwager also gave a short talk on "The Bible." Fred Warner served as pianist for the group singing and Glenn Unger as chorister. Business was in charge of the president, Mervin K. Myers and the secretary's report was presented by Ruth Sterner. Jean Markle was selected as the leader for next Sunday evening and her topic will be, "We Must Be in the World We Want." The president announced the Christian Endeavor county union roller skating party which will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at Forrest park, Hanover. It was decided not to hold a meeting on May 29 because of the American Legion Memorial Day parade and service and also because of the high school baccalaureate service.

COP SHOT BY HIS SERGEANT

Philadelphia, May 9 (AP)—A police sergeant was held on a charge of aggravated assault and battery today following the shooting of another policeman at motor harbor patrol headquarters.

Director of Public Safety Samuel H. Rosenberg ordered the suspension of House Sgt. William McMennamin, 51, yesterday after Homicide Detective Adam Sadorf reported McMennamin had shot and critically wounded Patrolman Walter Baker, 40.

Sadorf said Baker had beaten the sergeant in a fist fight.

Rosenberg also suspended Acting Capt. Thomas Lunney on a charge of having tolerated McMennamin's presence in an apparently drunken state. Dr. John Caracciolo, a police surgeon, examined McMennamin after the shooting and pronounced him intoxicated.

Sadorf said a half dozen policemen witnessed the shooting. The bullet entered his abdomen and emerged from his back.

Following a one-hour operation at Hahnemann hospital, Dr. Russell Williams said he thought Baker had a "50-50 chance to live."

McMennamin, a navy veteran of both wars, was quoted by Sadorf as saying the fight started when he chided Baker for not having served in either conflict. McMennamin surrendered without resistance after the shooting, Sadorf said.

Originator Of Cough Drop Dies

Atlantic City, N. J., May 9 (AP)—William H. Luden, originator of the menthol candy cough drop, died yesterday of a heart attack at the age of 90.

Luden, who made a fortune from the millions of packages of his cough drops distributed annually, died at his beachfront home here.

Born March 5, 1859, in Reading, Pa., he was the son of Jacob Luden, a watchmaker who came to the United States from Holland. Starting in the candy business as a youngster, he made penny candies with his own hands in his mother's kitchen and peddled them to offices and mills in Reading.

The famed menthol cough drop was developed after a quantity of Christmas candy failed to sell and was returned. Seeking some means of salvaging the candy for selling, Luden melted down the candy and added a new flavor, menthol. The result was the cough drop, which sold more than 15,000,000 packages in 1925.

WILL CONVERT COAL TO OIL

Louisiana, Mo., May 9 (AP)—The groundwork for a new American industry—the conversion of coal to oil and gasoline—was laid here with the dedication of two big demonstration plants.

About 500 persons, including government officials, military officers, members of Congress and industrial leaders, attended the ceremony yesterday. Most of them came on a special train from St. Louis, powered by fuel from the plants.

The plants were developed by the U. S. Bureau of Mines as an answer to the dwindling supply of gasoline and an ever increasing demand. Julius A. Krug, secretary of interior, in his dedication speech, called on private industry to get busy on plants of its own without delay. He expressed hope Congress would pass measures extending government credit to that end.

Today's Talk
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
ALONE

We formulate our life philosophy mostly alone, for we are mostly concerned with it. It is expressive of us and colors all our decisions. It is entirely personal. Our friendships, our attitudes, and our very success are affected by it.

We are dependent upon this personal philosophy of ours so that all through life we are quite lonely creatures. We are misjudged, misunderstood, and problemized. We are often neglected because we refuse to float down some popular stream, the destiny of which no one can predict. Like war, for example.

There are times in life when spiritual hunger is far more tragic than physical hunger. Satisfy the former and the latter will take care of itself. Marvin Lowenthal, in commenting upon Montaigne, said this: "The essential of life is not how we live but what we live it. And the way to live it is upon its own terms."

If we get too busy with material things we begin to lose much of the preciousness of life. We forget about that daily analysis of self which is so important to a triumphant life. In the midst of too much noise and confusion our senses become dulled. Only in solitude is prayer effective, and a just appraisal of our faculties gained. We ought to interview ourselves more.

Had there been no jails we might never have had a "Don Quixote" or a "Pilgrim's Progress." But even at so great a loss I would not want to invent a single jail more! Alone, however, many of the master thoughts of this world have been conceived. Thoreau had his Walden Pond, John Muir his Mountains of California, and W. H. Hudson had his vast Argentine pampas.

Who can but glory in the arms of Nature—alone? There are all the forces of life that are genuine and inspiring. There is the greatest of all universities where the most unlearned may become intelligent and apply his learning in every walk of life. There you will find more instructors than in any institution of learning in all the world!

We are never totally alone when in the midst of objects, or influences, that stimulate thought and give personal pleasure.

13 KILLED IN PA. ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK-END

(By The Associated Press)

Thirteen persons lost their lives in week-end accidents in Pennsylvania, six of them on the Commonwealth's highways.

Nicholas Kunkle, 70, Duquesne, died of a skull fracture suffered when he fell from a truck.

Raymond Lee Miller, two, of North Braddock, was struck and killed by a bus, police reported, as he wandered into a street while his family prepared for a shopping trip.

A head-on collision of two cars near Wellsboro killed Herbert Oldham, 21, a student at Mansfield Teachers' college, and injured four others.

Other Drownings

Nine-year-old Melvin Young of Milesburg, Centre county, fell into Bald Eagle creek near his home and drowned.

A truck-auto crash on Roosevelt boulevard in Philadelphia killed a soldier identified as Pvt. Joseph Ushaowitz of Port Jackson, S. C. A crowd of commuters saw the accident.

WHEN CHICKS TURN CANNIBALS

Many experienced poultry raisers are firm in their belief that feather-picking, toe-picking, and cannibalism among chicks are the result of improperly balanced feeds. In numerous instances they have proved that outbreaks of these vicious habits can be halted by correcting the rations. Of course, other factors are involved, and it is to understand all contributing causes and learn preventive as well as remedial measures that every poultry owner should consider this serious problem at this time.

Perhaps cause No. 1 among reasons why chicks develop the practice of cannibalism is crowding. Often, according to close observation, badly crowded chicks begin the indulgence by pecking at each others' toes. Then it is but a short step to feather-picking. And when blood is once tasted from either of these practices the habit seems to spread like a contagion. Likely is the assumption that chicks with plenty of room may not only escape from attacks more readily, but the individuals find other activities to engage their attention.

This theory leads to a second prominent cause of cannibalism—idleness. Obviously if chicks are kept busy they are less likely to be- gin toe-picking and feather-picking. A deficiency of salt in the feed, and sometimes a lack of animal matter, such as fish meal, steamed bone meal, and meat scrap, may contribute to cannibalism.

First among corrective measures is to provide plenty of room for chicks, with provisions for expanding space as the birds grow larger. Removal of males as soon as sex can be determined is advisable for several sound reasons besides making more room for the females.

Next, remove injured chicks as soon as blood shows. This not only permits treating the wounded victims, but it lessens the temptation among the perpetrators.

Many authorities advise an instant increase of salt in the rations as soon as these habits are discovered. Many poultrymen claim a noticeable cessation of cannibalism within a few hours after the salt content of the all-mash ration is raised to 2 per cent from the customary 1 per cent, or if a mash and grain ration is fed, after the salt has been boosted from 2 to 4 per cent, and, of course, to the mash. The extra salt should not be continued over 2 or 3 days, as it may otherwise prove injurious.

Fortunately, one of the better ways to keep chicks busy also provides them with an important and necessary addition to their ration—green feed. Chicks like grass clippings, fresh lettuce or other leafy vegetables, clover or alfalfa clippings, when the foliage is young and tender. From such green feed they obtain valuable nutrients. If green feed is furnished them in woven wire containers suspended along the wall so they must jump slightly to reach the feed, they will be kept actively engaged, will obtain excellent nutrition, and at the same time find the physical exercise beneficial.

If all these measures fail to check cannibalism, it may be necessary to darken the brooder house for a few days. And if this effort does not halt the practice, it may be needful to trim off a portion of the upper beak (mandible) with a sharp knife. This is a painless operation if properly performed, but should be

INSECT CONTROL MUST GET EARLY START IN GARDEN

Insect control must be started early to be effective. Use a complete all-purpose spray on roses to prevent injury from black spot, mildew, aphids and rose slugs. Spray peonies, delphiniums and other plants subject to fungus diseases with repeated applications of Bordeaux mixture.

farm's animals, pastures last over a longer period each year, and the land is kept in a high state of fertility for other rotation roles.

Every farmer, regardless of whether he grazes one or 1,000 animals, should fence his pastures into two to four equal parts and move animals from one to another over the season, thereby allowing the grass of the "resting" plot to regain top growth while animals are grazing on the other plot or plots. Usually three divisions are sufficient and most efficient to handle.

Fencing for this purpose may be temporary in scope and character. Seldom are extensive preparations necessary. At this time of the year the permanent pasture field is divided into what experience has proved to be about three equal parts—equal not so much in area as in potential grazing value under a rotation scheme. Driven posts and only enough wire to restrict animals are then erected to set apart the three fields.

Animals are grazed on plot No. 1 until the grass is eaten back partially but not close. They are then turned into plot No. 2 and there grazed likewise until the grass is eaten back only part way. Then plot No. 3 is grazed. By this time grass in lot No. 1 is tall, succulent and vigorous.

Benefits from rotation grazing are particularly visible in midsummer and late summer when one-field pastures usually decline to almost zero grazing values if the weather is dry.

Although not necessary to obtain greater returns from pastures, treating permanent pasture with limestone and acid phosphate is one of the truly remarkable investments of the farm. This, too, greatly enhances the farm's most valuable acres.

Fruit trees should be sprayed before the blossoms fall for protection against the codling moth and other pests.

Thin vegetable plants before they become too crowded to keep them growing vigorously. The one exception is peas, which like to stand fairly close together.

Consider succession sowing of beets, carrots, mustard, spinach and kohlrabi to provide a supply after the harvest from the first sowings has been exhausted.

Best Planting Times

A safe time to plant lima beans, pole beans, pole lima beans, water-melons and okra is when the oak trees unfold their foliage.

Lilacs should be cut with long stems to take care of the pruning which is needed early. Remove the suckers growing around the base.

Perennial seeds should be sown as soon as possible to obtain strong plants for transplanting to the borders next fall.

Much strawberry plants with straw, hay or some similar material to keep the fruit from being splattered with mud when it rains.

Other Garden Tips

Tent caterpillars are a serious pest during the spring. Burning out the nests with a torch is effective but may result in serious harm of the trees. A safer and equally effective method is to spray the plants with arsenate of lead at the rate of four level tablespoons to a gallon of water. This will kill the worms as they feed.

Water peonies frequently and thoroughly to fill out the buds.

Divide clumps of chrysanthemums, hardy asters, phlox and boltonias. As they grow, punch out the centers of the plants to make them bushy.

Prune flowering cherries, magnolias and flowering almonds lightly after blooming has ceased.

Start planting window boxes. The most popular window box plant for the sunny exposure is the geranium.

with petunias, second. Others are lobelia, weeping lantana, verbenas and nasturtiums. Good flowering plants for the semi-shade or shade are Begonia semperflorens (best in semi-shade), tuberous-rooted begonias, Impatiens holatili and fuchsias.

USE OF WEED KILLERS

Weed killers used to keep driveways and tennis courts free from all growth must be used with caution near the edges where the lawn takes over. They will spread in a limited way underground and the roots of many plants at the border line extend often a considerable distance beyond the confines of their top growth.

The Ladies' Temperance Association of this place continues in active preparation for the water meetings on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons in the room of the YMCA Association. One of the objects of the Association is to give women's influence to the temperance movement and to keep it from spreading by the pernicious habit of furnishing and using liquor in the family and social entertainment. Hence the ladies connecting themselves with the association subscribe the following simple but comprehensive pledge:

We, the undersigned, agree that we will not use intoxicating liquors, nor traffic in them as a beverage, that we will not provide them as an article of entertainment, or for

ARITHMETIC

I suppose that countless parents have been bothered by a lad who didn't like to multiply, divide, subtract and add.

Well, I know my father wondered why a son of his should be such a blunderer with figures when so accurate was he.

He seemed greatly disappointed when my sums I couldn't do. And together at my problems we would sit the evening through. But at figures in a column, as a boy, I'd sit and stare, Seldom adding them correctly, but what's worse I didn't care.

Now there sits a little fellow who in much resembles me. Trying vainly to remember what's the sum of nine and three. And his father and his mother wonder by what art or trick They can get him to stop saying: "I don't like arithmetic."

Early Spraying Can Control Bagworms

Bagworms have become serious the last few years. Along our highways many of the evergreen and deciduous trees are literally covered with the conical bags.

In these bags are the eggs laid by the female last fall. The eggs hatch in May or early June and the young caterpillars start feeding and almost at once begin the formation of the bag. Many of them will soon defoliate an arborvitae or juniper and do serious damage by eating foliage on shade trees.

If the plants are not large, the bags may be picked off and burned at this season. It usually is necessary to go over the plants several times, approaching from different angles, as it is easy to miss them.

The pest is readily controlled by a spray of arsenate of lead with a spreader such as flour applied in late May or early June. At this time the small insects are fairly active and moving about. Later in the season they will settle down. The time to control them by spray is during this active period.

Montbretias Are "Easy To Grow"

Montbretias are easy to grow and provide a wealth of blooms during the summer and fall.

They are referred to as tender bulbs because they cannot endure freezing temperatures and the bulbs will have to be taken up in late autumn before severe freezing weather arrives.

They require the same growing conditions as gladioli — a well drained soil of good fertility and a sunny garden spot. In spite of their vigor they resent being crowded by other plants, so they should be placed where ample sunshine reaches the soil surrounding them.

If the soil is well supplied with humus, the bulbs will propagate rapidly with the result that there will be several flower spikes during the first season from these newcomers. Those which fail to reach blooming size are sure to bloom the next season. If planted in a well protected spot and deeply covered with leaves, the bulbs will go through the winter unharmed unless winter weather should turn out to be very severe.

SAVED REAL MONEY ON LAST YEAR'S COAL BILL... WILL DO IT AGAIN!

YES, many local families realized a nice saving last year by buying on the "blue coal" Budget Plan. When prices jumped, it didn't bother them. Their bins were already filled—paid for in small monthly amounts. It's as convenient as paying electric or telephone bills. And it's so easy, too—you choose your own terms. There's no red tape. Phone us today for complete information about this easier way to buy coal.

Church Filled

St. John's Lutheran church was filled to capacity for the Mother's Day service on Sunday morning which was presented by the Ever-Willig class of the Sunday school. The pastor, the Rev. Kenneth D. James, conducted the service; Mrs. Luther Myers presided at the organ and the church choir led the congregational singing. The teacher, Mrs. Harry W. Badders, read the scripture lesson and Mrs. Kenneth D. James offered prayer. Guest speaker for the service was the Rev. Alton Motter, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Motter, near town, and also a son of the congregation, who is now pastor at St. Paul, Minn. His theme was, "Let Us Forget." His son, Harold Motter, was guest soloist and sang, "Open the Gates of the Temple." A special offering was received for Lutheran World Action.

Each mother was presented with a miniature basket of lilies of the valley. The oldest mother present was Mrs. Brooks Shryock and the youngest was Mrs. Norman Johnson. Each was presented with a potted plant.

Announcement was made at the service that monthly meeting of the Alta Hummer missionary society of the church which was to be held Thursday night at the home of Pauline Tressler, Glen Rock, cannot be held there on account of illness in the Tressler family. The meeting will be held on Thursday night at a place to be announced.

Society Meets

Services appropriate to Mother's Day were held in St. Luke's Reformed church, White Hall, on Sunday morning. ## Chapter 13

With the children scrubbed with an inch of their lives and all clad in their bright new bathing suits, Garrett and Felicity loaded them into Garrett's car and turned towards the Fleming place.

"I declare," said Ma Green at the entrance to the camp, where she was supervising the trimming of the "Turk's cap" hedge. "If you ain't the very picture of a family group! Mighty nice-looking family you've got there, Mr. Forbes."

"Thank you," said Garrett gravely, his eyes twinkling a little. "The wife and I like 'em."

Felicity told her startled heart to stop its nonsense and said gaily, "We might as well—we're stuck with 'em."

Susan was waiting for them when Garrett parked the car. She greeted them gaily, almost affectionately, and led the way down to the beach, saying to Garrett warmly, "I'm so glad you could come. I hope you won't be too bored."

"There's no danger of that," he assured her so firmly that Felicity set her teeth and warned her heart to behave itself.

A stuffy, starched, almost terrifyingly competent looking trained nurse had the small Allan in charge. Two men in dark blue trousers and shirts that looked a little like uniforms were lounging a little to one side.

Allan, a sunburned, husky scrap in his absurd blue sun-suit, squealed with delight at the sight of Tippy, and Susan said, "Why, I do believe he remembers her."

"Sure he does," said Tippy, composure, holding out her hands to the baby, who squealed again. "On account of he's a very swell baby and we liked each other a lot—"

Susan turned and called to the two bodyguards, who came forward immediately.

"Jim and Charlie, these are the Horne children," said Susan. "They are to play on the beach any time they like, and you are to teach them to swim."

"Sure, Mrs. Fleming," said the taller of the two young men, and grinned down at the eager children. Jim and Charlie took the children away for their first swimming lessons, while Susan, Felicity and Garrett sat down in low-slung beach chairs and Susan proffered cigarettes. When Felicity refused, Susan's brows went up just a little and Felicity smiled.

"It's not that I disapprove. It's just that it's an item of expense I can avoid, and when I find one that's avoidable—I let it drop," said Felicity, cheerfully frank about the matter.

"Oh," said Susan as though startled that an expense so small should be worth the bother of avoiding.

There was a cheerful hail from the road and the man whom Felicity and Garrett remembered seeing the morning Tippy kidnapped the baby came towards them.

"Oh, it's Chal—he wasn't sure he could make it. I'm so glad he could," said Susan happily, and greeted the man with a look in her eyes that made Felicity stare a little. "Chal, dear, you remember Miss Horne and Mr. Forbes Chalmers Thorpe, Felicity and Garrett?"

The good-looking man chuckled. "I do, indeed." He shook hands with Garrett, adding, "It's nice to see you again."

"It's damn decent of you to think so," admitted Garrett almost grudgingly. "I still get cold shivers when I think of that day."

"She's quite a youngster, that Tippy," said Chalmers. "And quite a person, I should say."

"You don't know the half of it," said Garrett with deep conviction, and told them the story of his attempt at punishing her.

"The more I hear of Tippy, the more I like her," Susan said suddenly. "I've a marvelous idea—let me adopt her."

Felicity caught her breath and stared at Susan, speechless.

Garrett looked startled.

Chalmers said quickly in a tone of protest, "Oh Sue—wait a minute—"

"I really mean it," said Susan. "Allan needs another child to grow up with. He's going to be a selfish little beast of an only child—"

"But it's not outside the bounds of reason, my dear, that you will some day present him with a little brother or sister—"

Chalmers began Chalmers.

Felicity was startled at the dark look that winged its way across Susan's face before she said through her teeth, "I shall never marry again—never."

There was an uncomfortable moment of silence and Felicity broke by saying, "It's nice of you, Mrs. Fleming—"

"I'm not Mrs. Fleming to you, Felicity. I'm Susan—remember?"

"Then—it's nice of you, Susan, but I couldn't agree—"

Garrett said quickly, "If Mrs. Fleming—"

"Susan," she interrupted him.

Garrett nodded and went on. If Susan really wants to adopt Tippy, Fliss, you can hardly stand in the child's way."

"But Garrry—he wouldn't! Denny would break his heart."

"I'll take Denny, too. After all, it's twins ought to be a lot of fun. And the baby adores Tippy, and will easily get accustomed to Denny," said Susan eagerly.

Chapter 14

Felicity was distressed, bewildered. It had all come so suddenly, so without a moment of preparation. And she had an uneasy conviction that it was, on Susan's part, merely a momentary whim that she'd regret in her next breath.

"Well, we don't have to decide this very minute, do we?" protested Chalmers good-naturedly, his eyes on Felicity's white face. "I was under the impression that this was a picture of a family group so serious?"

"But I am serious, Chal. I do want to adopt Tippy. She's a darling—so pretty—it would be fun to dress her up and show her off—"

"Which would be the very worst thing that could possibly happen to Tippy," said Felicity. "She's already well aware of her beauty and has an extremely exaggerated idea of her own importance."

Susan looked at her sharply. "I'm afraid maybe you don't understand Tippy," she said sweetly. "I'll see to it that she has a trained child psychologist as a governess and that she is taught to express herself—you'll see. Tippy is going to be somebody terribly exciting to live with."

She spoke as though the matter was all settled, and the arrival of the butler, accompanied by two footmen carrying a huge tea-hamper and various thermos jugs, created a diversion.

The butler served the luncheon with all the dignity and formality that he would have exhibited in the most formal drawing room, to the wide-eyed interest of the children, who clustered about watching him, so entranced that they were scarcely aware of the delectable food.

Susan suddenly put down her plate and put out a hand to Tippy, drawing her close.

"Tippy, how'd you like to come and live with baby and me?" she coaxed. "And be my little girl?"

"You mean—live here with you in that beautiful house?" she stammered.

"Of course—here and abroad and—oh, wherever I go. Would you like it?" demanded Susan eagerly.

It was Denny who answered. Denny who cried sharply, "Hey, she can't do that. She belongs to us."

Susan said tightly, extending her other hand. "Oh, you're coming too, Denny. Didn't I tell you? I'm going to adopt Tippy and you."

Tippy looked at the tea table, the half-eaten cake in her hand; up the dunes to the lovely white villa with its luxury and beauty of which she had caught a glimpse a few days before.

"And have food like this all the time?" she suggested cannily.

Susan laughed. "Of course, angel. And lots of lovely frocks and beautiful dollies and nice hair-ribbons—"

"I'd like it a lot, said Tippy. Cornelia, who spoke so seldom and was so shy and retiring that people often forgot her entirely, said in a low, shocked voice, "Why Tippy—aren't you ashamed? To turn against your own flesh and blood!"

Ellen crept into Felicity's arms and from that beloved shelter looked at Tippy as though she had never before set eyes on her.

"There!" Susan chowed triumphantly. "You see, Felicity? You can't stand in her way. I can do so much for her. I'll take such grand care of her."

"But—but her father will have to decide," protested Felicity unsteadily. "I'll write to him."

Chalmers said quietly, "Far be it from me, my angel, to offer the slightest hindrance to your little whims and fancies—but why not just have Tippy visit you and the baby for a week or two before you decide anything definite? After all, Tippy may change her mind."

"And," said Garrett firmly, eyeing Tippy with a curious look, "it's entirely in the cards that you may change yours. Tippy's a handful."

"I won't change my mind," said Susan. "We're going to have an awful lot of fun, aren't we Tippy? You and I are going shopping tomorrow morning. Tippy, my lamb!"

Tippy's eyes gleamed and Felicity's heart sank a little. But it had all happened so suddenly, so unexpectedly, that she was completely at sea. And yet looking at the curious, small, composed face, the curious gleam in Tippy's lovely eyes, Felicity was bewildered and unhappy. And more than a little afraid.

Later, when the party was over and Felicity began herding the children towards Garrett's car, Susan kept a close grip on Tippy, who looked at Felicity almost defiantly.

"Tippy's staying," said Susan. "I'm going with Fliss," said Denny stubbornly.

"But, Denny—Tippy'll be so lonely for you!" exclaimed Susan.

Composed, completely mistress of the situation, Tippy said clearly, "Oh, no I won't. Let him go on back to Ma Green's if he wants to. I'm staying here. It's going to be a lot of fun."

Garrett said under his breath to Felicity, "Don't look so tragic, darling. After all, it's a decision she has to make for herself."

Felicity nodded, trying not to notice that "darling" yet hearing it ringing all down the corridors of her heart above the distress and bewilderment of that moment.

"Don't look as though the end of the world had come. Fliss," said Garrett as he turned the car into Royal Palm Way. "After all, nothing definite has been done. She's just spending a few days with Susan Fleming. There can't be any official adoption until you get your father's consent. And it may work out into something wonderful for Tippy."

"I know, of course," said Felicity huskily. "Only I'm going to miss her—so terribly."

Garrett nodded. "Sure—we all will. But after all, we want the best for her, and this surely looks as though it might be just that."

And Felicity tried to believe that he was right.

Chapter 15

The subdued children were clustered inside the trailer when Jason came in from the store. He was tired, jubilant because having a job made him feel important, and hungry because he was—in spite of his job and his feeling of importance—a growing boy with a healthy appetite.

Felicity put his supper on the table and he sat down, his eyes roving contentedly over his family before he frowned and demanded, "Why, where's Tippy?"

"She's visiting Susan Fleming for a few days," said Felicity awkwardly.

Jason laughed and his eyebrows went up.

"Oh, my gosh—there'll be no living with her after that!" he commented dryly, and went on with his supper.

"If things work out the way Mrs. Fleming wants them to, we won't have to try living with her any more," said Felicity, setting her teeth hard.

Jason stared. What he saw in her face made him lay his fork down and say sharply, "What are you talking about, Fliss?"

"The Fleming lady wants to adopt Tippy," Denny burst out savagely. "She wanted me to stay, too—"

"Adopt?" Jason was incredulous, angry. "Say, what is this? Who's going to adopt Tippy? I never heard anything so crazy."

"Mrs. Fleming is fond of Tippy and wants her as an adopted sister to Lanny, Mrs. Fleming's little son," said Felicity. "And Tippy wanted to stay."

"God Lord, Fliss," Jason's voice shook a little. "You don't mean—Fliss, Tippy's our family. We can't go breaking up the family! Not—not after you've fought so hard to keep us all together."

Felicity smiled through tears she hated but could not control. And she tried hard to steady her voice as she said, "But, Jay dear, we have no right to stand in Tippy's way. After all, Mrs. Fleming can give her so much, and we can't give her anything at all—except our love and devotion. We—we haven't the right to keep her from all that Mrs. Fleming can give her."

Jason forgot he was hungry. He shoved his plate back and stood up, thrusting nervous fingers through his hair. "Oh, but—good grief, Fliss, this is awful. How do we know they'll be good to her? She's just a little kid. Some of the servants might mistreat her—"

"That's the only thing you don't have to worry about," The usually reticent Cornelia spoke crisply. "That one can take care of herself. I'd pity the servant that tried to mistreat Tippy!"

Felicity laughed a little shakily, uncertain laugh Jason tried hard to join her. Cornelia looked swiftly from one to the other. Then she said, "Here, you kids—long time you should have been in bed. Hop into it now. You and Jay don't need to worry about Tippy. She'll be all right."

Jason sat down again and remembered something. "I stopped in at the postoffice before closing time," he said, holding out a letter. "It's from Father."

Felicity accepted the letter eagerly and opened it, while Jason tried to pretend he was still hungry. And then they were all electrified as Felicity unfolded a limp, tired-looking bill that had dropped from the letter.

"Why," she gasped, "it's money!" "Gee whilkers—ten bucks!" Jason echoed.

Swiftly Felicity began to read the letter and burst out, "Oh, listen to this! Father's working again! Isn't that grand!"

She read aloud, "I'm glad I waited now, Fliss, for it's a real part—the lead. Really a starring role. Of course it's a character part, and it may not run very long—show business is in an awful state around here. But even if it's only a month's run, there might possibly be a movie offer after that—and anyway, it's a swell part. I will have to spend a lot to put up the sort of front expected of a successful actor."

The trailer resounded with their hubbub until Garrett came over to investigate and the news was relayed to him, whereupon he, too, joined in the celebration.

"And just think, Garrry—it's the lead. A starring part, really," Felicity gloated. "Isn't that marvelous?"

Garrett said unexpectedly, "Funny—happiness is a great beautifier. Fliss, you're lovely when your eyes shine like that, and there's such a pretty color in your cheeks."

"You—you're being foolish, Garrry. I'm not pretty at all. My nose turns up at the end and I've got freckles and—well, the nicest thing you can say about me is that I'm sensible!"

"Tommyrot!" The nicest thing I can say about you is that you're about the loveliest, grandest, most exciting person I ever met!" said Garrett almost huskily. And without

FORD MOTOR CO. REJECT OFFER OF MEDIATION

Detroit, May 9 (AP)—Ford Motor Co. refused outside offers of mediation today as effects of the five-day strike spread from coast to coast.

The company held to its position that the speed-up dispute should be arbitrated by an expert selected by the company and union. The CIO United Auto workers have rejected this suggestion.

Settlement Prospects Dim With prospects for an early settlement of the 65,000-man walkout growing dimmer, the union staged a mass demonstration Sunday.

It was partly to arouse enthusiasm among strikers, partly to put on a show of strength, the union said.

UAW President Walter Reuther led the parade of 5,000 unionists. Mayor Orville Hubbard, of Dearborn, where the giant Rouge plant is situated, marched too.

One of the offers of mediation came from Hubbard. The UAW said it would attend a meeting suggested by the mayor. Another offer was made by Acting Mayor George Edwards of Detroit, who tendered the use of the city's labor mediation committee.

8,000 More Idle Ford's rejection of both was set forth in a statement from John S. Bugas, vice president in charge of industrial relations. "This is a company-union dispute," Bugas said. "There is no issue in the current strike which cannot be quickly, promptly and peaceably handled by established procedure. Therefore, we see no need to turn the matter over to other individuals or groups outside the contract machinery."

The contract provides that such disputes should be handed to an arbitrator, Bugas said.

Today, the company said, another 8,000 workers would be laid off. They are employed at Ford plants in Los Angeles, St. Louis, Metuchen, N. J., Minneapolis-St. Paul and Iron Mountain, Mich. Numerous small plants among Ford's 3,500 suppliers waiting for her to answer, he turned and went swiftly out.

Felicity sat for a long time staring straight before her, wide-eyed, shaken. Only a few hours ago Garrett had called her "darling," and now he said she was lovely and exciting.

She revealed in that last, exciting That was what people said about this who were lovely and glamorous—like Susan Fleming! And Garrett had said it about her—Felicity Horne!

GAME TODAY

The baseball game between Gettysburg and Franklin and Marshall colleges scheduled here Saturday afternoon was rained out and will be played this afternoon at 3 o'clock on Nixon field.

The tennis match with Johns Hopkins on Saturday was also rained out.

Mass unemployment was rapidly undermining business in Dearborn. The suburban community is built around the Rouge plant, and the shutdown had repercussions in every part of the town.

Hudson Workers Back Meanwhile President Henry Ford II said the company plans to retain its "right to set work standards."

Elsewhere in the industry, 47,600 idled employees were due back at work today.

Hudson Motor Car Co. said 25,000 laid off last week due to a shortage of brakes would be back. Briggs Manufacturing Co. recalled 16,800 idled Friday by a small walkout. And Chrysler Corp. planned to resume operations of Briggs car bodies.

UN ASSEMBLY IN FINAL WEEK

Lake Success, May 9 (AP)—The United Nations General Assembly today began the final scheduled week of its spring meeting.

The 58-nation forum, which convened on April 5, is trying to finish its work and adjourn on Saturday, May 14. To do this the assembly must take final action on five major items in six days.

One of those items—the Dutch-Indonesian conflict—may be held over the next regular assembly meeting next fall.

Other issues on which decisions are pending include: Israel's application for U. N. membership; the disposition of Italy's pre-war African colonies; the Franco regime in Spain; and the treatment of Indians in South Africa.

Israel's bid for membership, strongly opposed by the Arab states, is expected to be ready for consideration by the full assembly within the next two days. The assembly's special political committee which is debating the case, decided

President Credits Health To Work

Washington, May 9 (AP)—President Truman has his own explanation for feeling so healthy at age 65: "I've had to work so hard all my life I've never had time to get into mischief."

The presidential quote was given yesterday to Dr. Edward Hughes Prudden, pastor of the First Baptist church. It was Mr. Truman's response to Dr. Prudden's expressed hope that "I will be as full of vim and vigor as you are when I reach my 65th birthday."

Yesterday was an especially big day for Mr. Truman. It was Mother's Day, his own birthday and the fourth anniversary of his formal announcement of the end of the war in Europe.

on Saturday to close its speakers' list and limit debate.

Delegates believe the action paved the way for a vote before Wednesday. Whatever the committee recommends will be passed on to the full assembly for final action.

Maryland, William and Mary and Temple are now additions to the 1949 Michigan State football schedule.
